

the range of 0.2-0.5 inches and a cross-sectional diameter within the range of 0.06-0.25 inches and made from an elastomeric material having a durometer in the range of 20-60 shore A, which is sufficiently flexible, resilient and soft, that when the stimulator member is brought into contact with the salivary member, a sufficient vibrational effect is produced on the salivary member that a significant increase in the saliva production into the oral cavity results.